Enjoy.Well, I don't think that anybody here would disagree that a good software engineer needs a lot of discipline. There are a lot of folks that take pride in their code and they expect their code to work right. If the code is their baby, they do not want any nasties to creep into it and hurt it. But the real story about discipline is that while it may be needed for software, it is not needed for hardware. While there are always a lot 82157476af
